Shipbuilding, Stockton’s oldest industry, is inextricably linked to the Stephens Brothers. Over one hundred years ago, two young men, brothers Roy and Theodore (“Thod”) Stephens launched their first boat named Dorothy—built in the back yard of their Stockton home—into the Stockton Channel. This event marked an auspicious beginning for this family business known around the world for its integrity and fine craftsmanship.

Stephens Bros.: Boat Builders, on view June 27 through September 29 in the New Gallery, will feature enlarged historic photographs, company advertising, and marine architects drawings from the Museum’s archive chronicling the history of the multi-generational boat building company. This exhibit tells the story of a company that gained its reputation on customer service and built a remarkable range of boats and military craft throughout its eighty-five year history.

Additionally on display will be a model of the Miss 102, a 60-foot yacht originally built by Stephens. This custom built-yacht was designed by Dick Stephens and launched on April 26, 1956. The model was graciously underwritten by Dick and Donna Stephens and after this exhibit will be on display in the museum by the Stephens Bros. 1927 26-foot Runabout in the California Room.

Join us on Saturday, July 20th, 1:30-3 pm for a presentation about the history of the Stephens Bros. by Tod Ruhstaller, CEO & Curator of History.

Masters of American Photography
August 1 - October 20, 2019

Masters of American Photography opens August 1st and will be on view through October 20, 2019. Organized by the Reading Public Museum, the works elegantly represent the history of photography from the 1880s through the 1980s, with a particular emphasis on the first decades of the twentieth century. The exhibition includes iconic images by photographers such as Eadweard Muybridge, Alfred Stieglitz, Ansel Adams, Walker Evans, Berenice Abbott, Edward Weston, Dorothea Lange, Margaret Bourke-White, Paul Strand, and others.

This thoughtfully curated collection features an impressive range of works from some of the most important artists in the history of the medium. Themes such as portraiture, landscape, still life, and cultural history dramatically illustrate America during this period. Many of the twenty-four works are vintage prints — made by the photographer very close to the time the negative was created — or later prints, made by the photographer or assistant years later.

In a technologically-rich society, this exhibition is a reminder that photography was once a longer, more in-depth process, requiring an artistic eye, chemicals, and a darkroom. The development process was just as important as “the decisive moment” after the shot was framed. Viewers will have a chance to see the nuances of printed photography as this show recaptures the essence of the medium.

Edward Weston [1886 - 1958]
Often referred to as “one of the most innovative and influential American photographers, Weston’s career spanned 40 years and included an expansive set of subjects from landscapes to still lifes. “Pepper No. 30,” is one of Weston’s best-known photographs. In this series of still lifes Weston explored abstraction and the beauty of the natural world.

Dorothea Lange [1895 - 1965]
As an American documentary photographer, Lange captured the consequences of the Great Depression. She is best-known for her Depression-era work for the Farm Security Administration (FSA). “Migrant Mother, Nipomo, California” was widely circulated to the print media and became symbolic of the plight of the migrant farm workers during that time.

Ansel Adams [1902 - 1984]
Ansel Adams became known for his black-and-white images of the American West. Inspired by nature, Adams work was deeply intertwined with his environmental advocacy. “Monolith, The Face of Half Dome,” taken with a Korona camera, is a significant image from his body of work because of his manipulation of tonal values—a departure from his previous photography.
Dolores Huerta: Revolution in the Fields / Revolución en los Campos tells one of the compelling stories that helped define the American experience: the farm workers labor movement of the 1960s and 1970s. The show draws on extensive Smithsonian curatorial research about legendary activist Dolores Huerta (b.1930).

This exhibition explores Huerta’s public life as an activist, and also examines her life as a teacher, mother, communicator, organizer, lobbyist, and contract negotiator. It also reveals the multi-ethnic aspects of the labor movement story, including the important participation of Filipinos and African Americans.

The extraordinary farm workers movement of the 1960s and 1970s advanced the cause of laborers, many of whom were Mexican American and who had been working and living in dire conditions. Its charismatic leader, César Chávez, has rightfully earned a place in American history. The exhibition will broaden the understanding of this movement through a careful look at the under-acknowledged contributions of Dolores Huerta, co-founder of the union, lobbyist, and contract negotiator on its behalf.

Dolores Huerta: Revolution in the Fields / Revolución en los Campos features bilingual text (English-Spanish), reproductions of historic and personal photographs and documents, along with protest art from the farm workers’ movement. The exhibition is organized by the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service in collaboration with the Smithsonian’s National Portrait Gallery, and received Federal support from the Latino Initiatives Pool, administered by the Smithsonian Latino Center.

The Haggin Museum is honored to be hosting this incredible show highlighting the legacy of legendary Latina activist, Dolores Huerta. While on view at the Haggin, the exhibition will have an exclusive collection of items and historical photographs that show Huerta’s life in Stockton. A Stockton high school yearbook, the family bible, and archival images of Stockton sites where Huerta lived and worked are among the items that will be included.

Opening Reception
Thursday, August 1 | 7 pm

Enjoy wine and light appetizers as you explore this exhibition that tells the story of ground-breaking activist Dolores Huerta. Huerta will be present as we celebrate her and her efforts in shaping the American experience.

HAUTE COUTURE
PRESERVING OUR COLLECTION

With the purpose of preserving the Haggin Museum’s clothing and costume collection for future generations, the Stockton Haute Couture Society, along with Docents, have been volunteering their time and assisting in the documentation and safe storage of the collection. The Haute Couture project began in 2014 with the creation of special padded hangers and the group continues to meet at the Museum to organize and catalog the garments.

Haggin Museum’s clothing collection includes pieces that range from the 1840s-1970s. Although it mainly consists of women’s dresses—from casual to evening gowns—the collection also includes men’s coats and an extensive selection of military uniforms. In addition to clothing, the collection includes shoes, hats, accessories, undergarments, and nightgowns from various eras.

Members of Haute Couture come to the Museum once a month to sort through and catalog the items in the collection. They identify the date/era, material, construction method, color, clothing name, and note any labels (especially helpful with context for local stores). Next, they assist with the garment condition reports—noting any tears, stains, holes, etc. Finally, the clothes are stored on special padded hangers or in archival boxes for safe keeping.

The Haute Couture project is funded by a generous grant from the Park Bixby Tower, Inc. (Russell & Marilyn Wylie). PB Tower—a Wylie family company that serves low-income seniors in Long Beach—gives grants to organizations to help seed and/or aid existing programs. The Haggin is grateful for the financial and volunteer support we receive that help us take on important projects such as these.

Early Rubens & Conservatory of Flowers
Wednesday, Sept. 4, 2019 | 7:15 am - 6:30 pm
$112 for members* | $147 for non-members

Join the Department of Museum Travel as we journey to the Legion of Honor in San Francisco to view Early Rubens, an exhibition of 50 works of one of the most extraordinary artists of the 17th century, Peter Paul Rubens. This exhibition focuses on the artist’s most innovative period of production, 1603-1620. Several of the paintings you will view have never left Europe; others have never been shown on the West Coast. Ruben’s paintings are known to be among the crowning achievements of the Baroque period of Europe. Enjoy a no-host lunch at the Legion of Honor Café.

In the afternoon we will board the bus and travel to the Conservatory of Flowers, an intensely valuable landmark in San Francisco’s Golden Gate Park. The Greenhouse and Botanical Garden, completed in 1879, houses a collection of rare and exotic plants. Stroll along pathways with our tour guide, or on your own, to view rare blooms in the five beautiful galleries of the oldest remaining municipal wooden conservatory in the nation.
